

Wild About Art

Is Art important? Why?

According to research published by Americans for the Arts, children who regularly participate in a comprehensive art programs are four times more likely to be elected to class office, four times more likely to be in a math or science fair, and four times more likely to win an award for writing.

How will it help my child?

Art helps build self esteem as children take pride in the works of art they create. It helps to develop their problem-solving skills, especially when faced with three dimensional problems such as sculpting. Art helps children to improve their sensory awareness and improve their manual dexterity.
